QUERIES.

"If a person feel a person treading on his toes. Need a person ask a person how a person knows."

Is it any body's business,
If a gentleman should choose
To wait upon a lady,
If the lady don't refuse?
Or, to speak a little plainer,
That the meaning all may know,
Is it any body's business
If a lady has a beau?

Is it any body's business
When the gentleman does call,
Or when he leaves the lady,
Or if he leaves at all?
Or is it necessary
That the curtain should be drawn,
To save from further trouble
The outside lookers on?

Is it any body's business
But the lady's if her beau
Rides out with other ladies,
And doesn't let her know?
Is it any body's business
But the gentleman's, if she
Should accept another escort,
Where he doesn't chance to be?

Is a person on the side-walk,
Whether great or whether small;
Is it any body's business
Where that person means to call.
Or if you see a person
And he's calling anywhere,
Is it any of YOUR business
What his business may be there?

The substance of our query,
Simply stated would be this?
Is it ANY BODY'S BUSINESS
What ANOTHER'S BUSINESS IS?
If it is, or if it isn't,
We would really like to know
For we're certain if it isn't,
There are SOME who make it so.

If it is, we'll join the rabble,
And act the nobler part
Of the tattlers and defamers,
Who wrong the public mart;
But if not, we'll act the teacher,
Until each meddler learns,
It were better in the future
To mind his own concerns.

MRS. R.'S ADVENTURE.

[FROM CHAMBERS' EDINBURG JOURNAL.]

As it is my intention to describe one of the most thrilling incidents which ever occurred in the existence of any lady moving in the upper circles of society, and as that lady is myself, the public will kindly content themselves with the above heading. They will be doubtless desirous to learn the name in full of the heroine of so tremendous a catastrophe—being a female myself, I can easily pardon so natural a curiosity—but I cannot furnish more than the initial letter. My nerves are not what they were previous to the overwhelming experience about to be narrated, and I am not equal to the further trial which publicity would entail upon me. I could not receive the thousand and one expressions of sympathy which would certainly flow in it, after such a revelation, from all quarters—deputations from numbers of my own sex and position in life—condolences, very like, from Royalty itself—subscriptions, addresses, a memorial fund, and perhaps even a monument.

If the feelings, doing such honor to our common nature in the case supposed, should take the very permanent form of expression I have last mentioned—a monument, erected in memory of my unparalleled sufferings, it would undoubtedly be that of a stone omnibus—for it was when travelling in an omnibus that this torture was endured—a granite 'bus, as it seemed to poor, friendless me, at the time, with driver of black marble (but of him I only saw the boots through the inside window), and with a conductor of impenetrable adamant.

I do not belong to a rank of society, please to understand, which is in the habit of using public conveyance, and far less, 'busses, at all. When I wish to take the air or go a shopping, I, "touch a bell," like Mr. Secretary Stanton, and observe: The Brougham at 3 or 4, as the case may be, and it comes to the door accordingly; but my husband having been less pressed by professional business of late than usual, and the last few mornings being fine, he had observed. "Let us have no Brougham but Vaux;" and although I did not quite understand his meaning, I was very well content to accompany him on foot, for it is not always one can get a husband to go shopping.

He had been in my company to sit for a crystal cube portrait to give me on our marriage day; and all seemed sunshine, as it sometimes does when the greatest misfortunes are waiting. No sooner had we left the establishment in question at Charing Cross, than it began to rain—one of those sudden and violent downfalls, which really seem to be the result of some accident in the main of nature's water works; as though the grandmother of all buckets, as the Persians say, was emptying; and our cry was, "Cab, cab, cab," and still they did not come. No two expressions in the human face divine are perhaps more different than the look of a cabman who wants a fare and the look of a cabman when he doesn't. In the one case, he is sprightly, intelligent, obliging, eager; in the other, he is morose, phlegmatic, repulsive, as though all the world was indeed the orange to which it was so often likened, and he had squeezed it flat, and there was nothing to be got out of it. He takes no notice of cries, gestures, importunities of half drowned persons, for it is his turn now to be deaf to the solicitations of his fellow creatures, and blind to the signals of human metaphors. Nay he enjoys the sufferings of the non-embrella'd, for as my husband quotes from Milton or somebody, "Fair is foul, and foul is fare" with the London cabman.

Although observing hitherto these unpleasant characteristics as an uninterested spectator only, and knowing nothing of their hideous attempts at overcharge, and dreadful language when withstood, except from hearsaw, I have always hated cabmen and their cabs; but I could never have imagined that any vehicle, either upon two wheels or four, could have filled me with such unimaginable loathing as that with which I now regard a 'Bus. I have said that we could get no cab, and the wet was pouring through my delicate parasol as through a sieve, when my husband suddenly exclaimed: "Come; here's a roof at all events," and hailed Notting Hill omnibus.

"Never!" exclaimed I.

"Come along," cried he; don't be ridiculous;" and while still feebly resisting, I found myself on the step of this—this very mammoth machine. On the step, by no means inside. The machine, indeed, was large, but it was not large enough. I read afterwards, upon a scroll above the door, the startling fact, that it was licensed to carry twelve inside; and I am sure they must have been all there besides the passengers. Four females were already within; and above the sea of crinoline, the hats and heads of six gentlemen were visible. My husband and myself, I was given to understand, would make up the party. I will not wound the sensibilities of my readers by describing my emotions during my passage from one end of the vehicle to the other, I will only say that—doubtless from experience of what it was best and kindest to do—every passenger gave my dress a pull as I squeezed by him; and that, when I reached the furthest corner, and sat down (it we may call it sitting) I registered a mental vow that I would not get out again until everybody else had done so. My husband followed, as the lawyers say, "on the same side;" and if he had a square inch of sitting room, it was as much as he had, and a good deal of that was sharp steel.

"My dear," said I, perceiving the expression of his countenance, "it's no use muttering those dreadful words; I can't help it. I can't make my crinoline smaller."

"Well, then, I can't stand it," replied ed he. "I shall get out, and go the club. I'll tell the cab to put you down at Westbourn Terrace."

"Oh, my goodness!" cried I, "you are not going to leave me in this dreadful place all alone."

"The 'buss passes almost your very door," says he, "you cannot meet with anything unpleasant; it isn't as though there was nobody in the 'bus to protect. [It certainly was not.] Have you got some money with you?"

"Yes," returned I, with a sort of calm despair; "I have got my purse; for I feel its silver clasp running into me, and hurting me very much."

"That is all right," said he, without thinking, I hope, of what he was saying; "but I'm (something which I didn't quite catch), if I stand this any longer."

The next moment I was alone—that is to say, there were follow creatures all around, but not a drop of sympathy which could be depended upon among them all.

Hermit never was half so lone
As he who hath fellows, but friends not one, and this is especially true of a lady of quality in a crowded omnibus. For some little time the novelty of my situation prevented my feeling how forlorn I was. The rattle of this species of vehicle is not to be described by mere words, and is of a character to confuse the intelligence of the most collected. I suppose the class of persons who use 'busses delight in this rough music, or they would surely insist upon its being stopped. Close beside me was what I took at first to be some anatomical curiosity in a glass case but these were the legs of the driver, seen through a window, as above mentioned; this spectacle also affords, I suppose, some pleasure, or it would surely be excluded from the view of the passengers. Ever since my husband's departure, the cab had never ceased to exclaim in an excited and irritable manner, "Rilloke," "Rilloke!"* by which artful exclamation, as I subsequently made out, he was striving to lure some other person to occupy the superfices I have already alluded to; but in this infamous purpose I am happy to say he did not succeed. Altho' unable to look out of the window (except at the legs of the driver,) by reason of intervening opaque bodies (the size, by the by, of all my fellow passengers was stupendous, although continued travel in such conveyances would, I should have imagined, produced tenuity,) I was yet enabled to calculate by the time consumed that I must be getting near my destination. One or two persons having left the vehicle, I began to think that I might be able to extricate myself without much difficulty. So I felt for my purse, and by exertions, which I may fairly designate as superhuman, managed to get it out of my pocket. First I felt in the gold department, and simply because one's fingers always do get there when one wants the silver one. One never carries gold when one goes out with one's husband shopping, for obvious reasons, and therefore I was not surprised to find none. Then I felt the silver department and a shudder shook my frame, for there was nothing. However I always carry stamps—and the man would surely take twelve stamps instead of fourpence. Alas, that very morning I had given my sister all my stamps save one to put on a quantity of charity circulars she was posting, and that one she had laughingly refused to take, upon the ground that it had no gum on it, and looked as if it had been used before. That doubtful stamp was all that I now found myself possessed of in the way of legal tender.

Hot and cold, pale and flushed, fever dry and damp with the dews of terror, all these physical changes took me, one after the other, while, mentally, my reason was shaken to its very centre. I had never been in the position of an unprotected female before. I scarcely knew what it was to be without a coachman and footman within call. As to being alone and penniless, I could scarcely picture to myself the horrors of such a situation. At this moment, over the shoulder of my opposite neighbor, I beheld a prison van pass by, as though it had been sent me for a sign. A little later, while I was still devising scheme after scheme of escape, dismissing one after the other as impracticable, a mob of people obstructed our progress, the figures in the foreground of which were a policeman and a lady elegantly dressed, the latter of whom had been taken up for shoplifting.

"Serve her right, ma'am," observed the only member of my own sex now left in the vehicle; and the uncompromising way in which she said it shattered in an instant the resolve I had formed of asking her—for the love of all she held sacred—to lend me a four penny bit. I felt certain she would see me borne away to prison or the hulks, or whatever dreadful destination my circumstances might earn for me, without a pang of pity. I fancied I remembered the very words of some penal statute specially directed against persons who obtained a ride in a public conveyance under false pretences—the last three words in particular were impressed upon my memory. How many days would elapse, I wondered, before I should be permitted to communicate with my husband?

As for asking a strange gentleman to lend me fourpence, I was sure I never could do that. I felt, to begin with, that I should scarcely be able to make myself heard in the turmoil, and that he would reiterate, 'What, mam?' and make me repeat the request a dozen times.

And now we are getting awfully near the terrace for which I was bound. We passed through Westbourne Place, where there were many tradesmen's shops with which I dealt, and perhaps I could have persuaded the conductor to stop with me into the grocer's or the hairdresser's and so get paid; but I dared not let these people know that I ever traveled in an omnibus; it would get all over the neighborhood; no—anything was better than such a disclosure as that. Past the gleaming shops we rattled and into the familiar terrace within a stone's throw of my happy home.

"The lady for Westbourne Terrace," cried the conductor, stopping the vehicle and flinging open the door with a crash.

"Never mind," said I feebly—"never mind, my good man; it's of no consequence; I'll go on a little further."

"Just as you please, ma'm," returned the conductor, and looking at me rather queerly; "there's no bextra charge to the journey's end."

"Thank goodness for that," murmured I, "I cannot, then, be declared a defaulter to a greater extent than fourpence. The offence is not increased by my sitting here; and surely procrastination is better than immediate peril. By waiting until this horrid machine stops I shall have an opportunity of private conference with this man, and my passionate appeal may move him." Not, however, that I had much hope of this; for he was a hard and shining man, upon whom the rain seemed to have no effect beyond making him shine the more; and tears would probably be even less regarded.

After I had observed that "it was of no consequence where I got out," the other passengers all fixed their eyes upon me furtively, and although evidently strangers to one another, exchanged meaning looks among themselves. I knew very well what they were winking about. They concluded I was out of mind; and when I thought of the dear children at home, flattening their noses against the drawing room window, in hopeful expectation of their mamma's return, and of the loose money that was lying in my dressing case, any smallest coin of which would be worth forty times its weight in virgin gold, if it was only in my pocket instead of there, I felt that I was very near going mad in reality. However, these wretches all got out, one after another; and I heard the conductor [illegible] vehicle, doubtless to tell his friend the driver what a queer fare they had got inside, who was determined to have her money's worth by going as far as it would take her.

For a moment the idea of taking the opportunity of the door being left unguarded, crossed my mind, but I remembered how very dangerous I had always heard it was to attempt to leave a carriage while in rapid motion. I put aside that unworthy scheme with honest indignation. We were now going very fast, and thereby I learned by experience why it is that they pack people into omnibuses like figs in a drum. If this were not done the inmates would be tossed violently from side to side, as I was, like parched peas in a frying pan. I also learned for the first time, on this occasion, how very far London extends west, and what a number of—I dare say respectable—persons live on the wrong side of Westbourne Terrace. At last, amidst a neighborhood which appeared to have been built the day before yesterday, the machine stopped in front of an unfinished public house, round which all the disreputable persons who could be gathered together in so out-of-the-way district, appeared to be collected. The moment of confusion had arrived, and I was unprepared, by this time, to address the court—I mean the conductor—in mitigation. I stood on the step, and laid my laced parasol upon his arm in order to emphasize the statement that my husband had forgotten to leave with me the amount of fare.

"The gentleman," said I, "who got out in Regent Street."

"All right, mum," interrupted the man, touching his hat, I am bound to say, with civility and discernment. "He paid for you, 'cos he said it would save trouble."

I thought I should have fainted with joy. Save trouble! He had preserved my reputation, my liberty, my very life, perhaps! I never felt so truly glad that I was married, never so thoroughly appreciated the advantages of a husband. It was fortunnate that this feeling overwhelmed all others, or I do think, in the first burst of gratitude have embraced that hard and shining man. Instead of that, however, I merely observed: "Can I get a cab? I want to go to Westbourne Terrace."

"Well, upon my life!" exclaimed he slapping his leg. Then turning to the roddest of all the red-nosed throng around us, he added, "Jem, bring your cab up; here's a fare."

While the cab was being brought up, I once more retired to the interior of the machine, and heard the conductor explaining to his friends the peculiar idiosyncrasy of the lady inside.

"Man and boy," said he, "I a bin with 'busses thirty years; but I never seed nothin like this. Now, she's a going back, and you may depend upon it she'll be here again." (I shuddered) "before the day's out. She's what they call a manymoniac. There's been nothin like her, in a public conveyance, since Mr. Hunt"—

Here the vehicle arrived, and I made my escape; but I quite agree with what that conductor was about to observe. Nothing so terrible has occurred in a public conveyance since the criminal alluded to poisoned a whole cab full of people, as that adventure of mine in the Notting Hill 'Bus.

* The exclamation which our fair correspondent describes must, we think, have been intended for Royal Oak, a public house in Bayswater, which is a great halting place for omnibusses.

"I DON'T CARE."—Yes you do, and there's no use in trying to deceive yourself with the sophistry of these words.

The best and noblest, the truest, and most generous part of your nature does care for the unkind, cutting words you have uttered to one you loved, in moments of pique.

You may carry yourself over so proud and defiantly, you may never drop by word or look the dew of sweet healing on the wound you have made in a nature as proud, as sensitive, and exacting as your own; but to your honor, be it said, you are better than your words, and away down in your heart lurk shame and repentance and sorrow for them.

You may carefully hide them both, and in a little while they will be gone, for oh! it is very easy to make one's self bitter, and proud, and cold—very hard to keep one's self sweet, mellow, and charitable; but there must be some plan, and some struggling before you can do a mean, ungenerous thing to a true friend, and have your heart endorse your "I don't care!"

And how often these words are uttered, when conscience sternly refutes them; and how often they harden the heart, and keep the feet in the way of evil.

Be careful, reader, when you say, "I don't care!"

NEVER GET ANGRY.—It does no good. Some sins have seeming compensation or apology, a present gratification of some sort; but anger has none. A man feels no better for it.—It is really a torment; and when the storm of passion has cleared away, it leaves him to see he has made himself a tool in the eyes of others. Who thinks well of an ill natured man, who has to be approached in the most cautious and guarded way? Who wishes him for a neighbor or partner in business? He keeps all about him in the same state of mind as if they were living next to a hornet's nest or a rabid animal. And as to prosperity in business, one gets along no better for getting angry. What if business is perplexing, and everything goes by contraries, will a fit of passion make the winds more propitious, the grounds more productive, and markets more favorable? Will a bad temper draw customers, pay bills and make creditors better natured? An angry man adds nothing to the welfare of society. Since, then, anger is useless, needless, disgraceful, without the least apology, and found only 'in the bosom of fools,' why should it be indulged in at all?

☞ "Sweet are the uses of adversity," wrote the poet. These uses are thus summed up by Punch with philosophy as well as wit:—

You wear out your clothes.

You are not troubled with visitors.

You are exonerated from making calls.

Bores do not bore you.

Tax-gatherers hurry past your door.

Itinerant bands do not play opposite your windows.

You avoid the nuisance of serving on juries.

No one thinks of presenting you with a testimonial.

No tradesman irritates by asking: "Is there any other little article you wish to-day, sir?"

Imposters know it is no use to bleed you.

You practice temperance.

You swallow infinitely less poison than others.

Flatterers do not shoot their rubbish into your ears.

You are saved many a debt, many a deception, many a headache.

And lastly, if you have a true friend in the world, you are sure, in a very short space of time, to know it.

IMPORTANT TO SORGHUM GROWERS.—As the season is at hand to gather the cane, all engaged in growing it must attend to it as soon as possible. The wet weather causes shoots to grow out of the stalk, which will injure it and have a tendency to give the molasses an unpleasant taste. It should be cut before frost. Strip the blades off, cut close to the ground, cut top off at second joint and tie in bundles convenient to handle, and haul to the mill.

HINTS ON POULTRY KEEPING.—A winter in the Country Gentleman says:

I keep from 100 to 200 fowls, mostly of the Black Spanish breed, and keep them confined the year round, but disease is not known among them, and I can assure you that they do fully as well as those kept by others, who believe that fowls cannot do as well unless they are kept scratching. My yard is only 25 by 60 feet, filled 12 inches deep with leached ashes and sand. I have a large box, containing some thirty bushels of burnt shells and bones, which the fowls have free access to, and when the top becomes too dry, I take it off and put it around my grape vines. My gardener raises 600 head of cabbage annually, which are fed to them during the Winter, and in Summer he gives them lettuce, all they want. I have a contract for 10 beef heads weekly, and give them plenty of sour milk, in addition to all of which they have free access to a mixture of corn, oats, wheat and barley, which is kept in a bin holding some 40 bushels, so constructed as to regulate itself, and not allow fowls to waste a grain or scratch in it. My watering trough is also constructed as only to admit the head of the fowls, and is always full of pure clean water, which is of more importance than anything else in keeping poultry healthy.

"A barrel of lime, a bucket and a brush, are indispensable articles in a poultry house, and should be used every rainy day (and often during such a drouth as we have had lately), whitewashing everything but the floor, and use the lime dust on that. But wash the floor first. I have tried all your vermin preventives, and everybody's else, but never succeeded in keeping my fowls free until I found a remedy by experimenting.

"The nests are so constructed as to be all taken apart in two minutes; they are perfectly smooth inside and out, and once in every two months I have them taken down, clearly washed, and then thoroughly washed, and then thoroughly coated with common whale oil, and have never yet seen a single louse near them, nor can one be found near my premises. The oil we apply with a small brush, and it can be relied upon as a sure preventive against vermin on fowls."

WHAT DID HE SAY, LYDIA?—Good old Mrs. Call was very hard of hearing, being somewhat advanced in years. Her daughter Lydia was a bouncing lass, who loved a good frolic and knew well how to get one up. Lydia had arranged a junket, and the young men and maids were all on hand. Among the rest was the General—one of 'em. In the midst of the fun, in popped old deacon——, to see how the widow fared. This was a wet blanket to the merriment, and the deacon held on till Lydia was out of all patience. She wished he would go, and by and by he gets up to depart.

"Oh, Deacon" said mother Call, "don't think of going before tea. Oh, do stop to eat."

The good Deacon, so strongly urged, replied:

"Well, I rather think I will, as the folks will not expect me home till dark."

"What did he say, Lydia?" asked the widow.

Lydia had a ready answer.

"He says he will not, to day, mother, as the folks expect him home before dark.—Why, how deaf you are, mother?"

"Oh, well, some other day, Deacon, won't you?" said mother Call, as she showed the Deacon out.

"Smart girl, that," said the old Deacon, as he trudged along home. "She'll find her way through, I'll warrant."

THE FARMERS, BAROMETER.—Take a common glass pickle bottle, wide-mouthed; fill it within three inches of the top with water; then take a common Florence oil flask removing the straw covering and cleansing the flask thoroughly; plunge the neck of the flask as far as it will go, and the barometer is complete. In fine weather the water will rise into the neck of the flask even higher than the mouth of the pickle bottle, and in wet and windy weather it will fall to within an inch of the mouth of the flask. Before a heavy gale of wind, the water has been seen to leave the flask altogether at least eight hours before the gale came to its height. The invention was made by a German, and communicated to a London journal.

☞ A spendthrift said: "Five years ago I was not worth a farthing in the world; now see where I am through my own exertions." "Well, where are you?" inquired a neighbor. "Why, I owe more than a thousand pounds!"

THE STATE FAIR.—A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press in a letter descriptive of the State Agricultural Fair held at Williamsport, Pa., last week, says:—

No agricultural exhibition probably ever invited public patronage more successfully than that which has just terminated, and probably no single one ever offered less inducements to its visitors, or less return for twenty-five cents invested. A strange innovation was introduced at this exhibition, which it is to be presumed and hoped will never be witnessed again at a similar entertainment. I refer to the introduction within the enclosure of innumerable side shows and drinking bars, which were of no pecuniary benefit to the society, whatever monetary advantage they might have been to the owner of the ground. The number of young men who reeled to and fro, a disgrace to themselves, and objects of fear to the lady sight seers, bore evidence to the profits the rum-sellers were deriving from the privileges granted.

State of Affairs in Western Alabama.

The Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, received an interesting report from Major Charles A. Miller, who passed through portions of Western Alabama on an inspection tour. The report represents that the freedman were generally satisfied and doing well, and their only source of regret was their separation from their wives and families, who were left in different parts of the State in their flight from tyrannical masters to the protection of the bureau. They were working for a portion of the crop, varying on different plantations from one-twentieth to one-fourth, besides food, quarters, and clothing.

Cases have frequently come to the notice of the assistant commissioners of the murder of loyal people for their expressions of devotion to the Government. The most recent case was the murder of Dr. Grierson, one of the most prominent citizens of the State, by a gang of desperadoes, on account of his well known sympathy for the Government.

In the vicinity of St. Stephens an aged freedman, who had not seen his wife and family for several years, called upon their master, named Fletcher, and asked that they be permitted to return with him to his home. Fletcher, in cold blood, without reply, shot him, and, before his victim ceased to breathe, severed his head from the body.

The cowardly miscreant escaped, but no doubt will soon be captured. The head of the gentle old man was borne when a few yards from his post, was attacked by a party of rebels and murdered. Not satisfied with the death of the soldiers, they cut off his ears. These are a few illustrations of the temper of a portion of the Western Alabamians.

The report closes with the opinion that the ignorance of the people is unparalleled, and that many will not believe the war is over. The soldiers of the late confederate army are the least obnoxious, and their deportment is in commendable contrast with the action of the citizens, who declare that the taking of the oath of allegiance is but a mockery.

IMPORTANT TO PARENTS.—We learn that occasionally the teachers of some of the public schools are troubled with children under the age prescribed by law for entering the schools. The attention of parents is called to the following act of Assembly, passed April 27, 1865:

See 5, act No. 46, page 63, pamphlet series for 1865;

That the words "above the age of five and under twenty-one years," in the twenty-third section of the act of the eighth of May, A. D. 1854, relative to the regulation and continuance of a system of education by Common Schools, be so changed as to read "between six and twenty-one years."

It will be seen by the above that children under six years of age cannot be admitted into the public schools of the Commonwealth. It is to be hoped that parents will observe this act of Assembly, and thereby save the teachers and directors the unpleasant duty of sending home all children under the prescribed age.

LEFT HAND WRITING.—The editor of the Soldier's Friend, New York, has offered premiums to the soldiers and sailors of the Union who lost their right arm in the war, for the best specimens of penmanship. The competition is exciting a great deal of interest among the soldiers, and a very interesting collection of specimens has been sent in. The premiums are respectively $200, $150, $100, and $50. The specimens are to be written on letter paper, with a page about eight by ten inches, one inch margin, and to be in every case original compositions. Selections will not be refused. But in every one there must be a sketch of the author's war experience, giving the time of enlistment, company, regiment, list of battles, when and where wounded, and residence, &c. The specimens must be addressed to Wm. Ol. and Bourne, editor of the Soldier's Friend, No. 12 Center street, New York, and must be sent in previous to the 1st of January next. The committee of award are Governor Fenton, Rev. Henry W. Bellows, D. D., President of Sanitary Commission, Wm. Cullen Bryant, George William Curtis, Wm. E. Dodge, Jr., Howard Porter, and Theodore Roosevelt, Esq.

☞ Union men, do not forget that this is election day. Your attendance and votes are wanted at the polls.

Our Correspondence.

DAVENPORT, IOWA, Oct. 1, 1865.

DEAR GLOBE:—I trust I am within the bounds of pardon for so long a delay in my correspondence, when I state as an excuse, that I was waiting for our "Fair" to transpire, and also know whether Jack Frost would be generous enough to let our corn and potatoes ripen. The first has passed, and the second safe. Such a display of vegetables as old Scott county poured out on this occasion, I suppose you never saw. The pumpkins, potatoes, squashes, melons, corn, onions, &c., both for size and quantity, exhibited the great power and richness of this soil, as well as the skill and judgment of the farmers in their cultivation and the selection of seeds. I positively saw sweet pumpkins on the stands as large as flour barrels,—and onions that would weigh two pounds per piece. Corn 18 to 20 inches long in the ear, and squashes and melons beyond belief.

Owing to the immense drain upon the hogs and neat cattle, in supplying 30,000 extra stomachs during the war, this branch of the exhibition was not so good as in ordinary times; still it was quite respectable, especially in milch cows and steers. One thing is noticeable here, all animals are fat, whether worked or not. You never see a poor horse. There was some good racing and trotting on Thursday and Friday; and they have some fast horses here, as well as men. There is a beautiful race course attached to the grounds, which are as level as a board. But you should have seen the display of farming utensils, of every conceivable kind, and adapted to every imaginary purpose to save the toil of man. The display of fancy needle work was good, so that expert as eastern ladies are in that elegant accomplishment, they could take no extra premiums from our female friends of, Davenport and Scott. I hope your fair just about coming off will be a success; for although I cannot but feel a just pride in the productions of my new home, I have the old kind feelings toward my native country—"the scent of the roses" of memory "will cling round her still."

We have had a wet, warm, very warm summer, and according to an old superstition, this seventh year we were to have early frosts which would nip our corn and potatoes, &c., and leave us the wheat crop badly injured by the wet weather, with a year of lost labor, and a scarcity of food for beasts. But, thank God, the apprehension proved but a myth, for the corn is already well riponed with the other vegetables, and still we have the finest of weather, and such crops! The very earth groans under the load. Of course, prices are very low for all farm products except wheat and barley. Corn is quoted yesterday at 25 to 30 cts. Onions 18 to 23. Potatoes 18 to 30, &c. I think I will have my potatoes holed up. They will sell better next spring at St. Louis. The steamers have been carrying immense quantities of them and onions, now South. A perfect stream of wagons flows into the city every day through every thoroughfare, ladened with them for the St. Louis dealers. Oh! this is a great country beyond paradventure, and is growing greater every hour. The town is improving rapidly, but houses are badly wanted; and he who fancies that this city or state is ever to go backward, has only to visit it for a few weeks and take the bearings. There is a great rush to the interior to secure farms, whilst they may be had in good localities at reasonable prices. Unimproved land has run up in Marshall county, and part of Boone, within reach of the railroad, to $10 per acre. The road is finished to Boonsborough, and leaves the station 7 miles from a half section of mine. This is near enough. You can step into the cars at Huntingdon and get out at this station, the connection being complete all the way. A fine chance for some of your eastern folks to secure a good farm.

I was shocked to hear of the decease of my old friend DR. LUDEN. I cannot realize it. In imagination I can see him still walk your streets, in all the pride of his princely presence, with his fine intellectual countenance lighted up with his customary benign smile. Indeed you will miss him; and although you are not left destitute of fine physicians, and safe and scientific practitioners, in Drs. McCulloch and Snare, still Luden had become a part of "Old Huntingdon;" and I should feel, were I to return to see you, that there was a vacancy there, which would not fail to work a sorrow at the heart, in the contemplation that it is forever! Have you no one who thinks it worth his while to write a notice worthy of him? I have known him since 1833. He came to Huntingdon poor; with, as he told me, just one bit in his pocket left. He came on foot, although his father was well off, and held high position in his native State, being principal of the celebrated University of Saxe-wiernar—the literary Athens of Germany. As such, representing this institution, he sat in the Legislative Assembly of that Dutchy, and became its President for life. He was a man of great erudition, and an author of considerable celebrity. He wrote a history of Germany in 4 large quarto volumes, printed in Germany, a copy of which I think the Dr. had at his death. At least I have seen him have it. He also wrote a book of travels in the United States, besides many other smaller works on science, &c. At the time of the battle of Iona, he was literally stripped by the French soldiers, or camp followers, even to his shirt, and was obliged to commence the world anew. His income was considerable, and he lived in some style. But being himself a fine scholar, he spared no pains in rendering perfect the education of his children for, and in whatever profession they adopted. And so few young men anywhere had better or greater advantages in this particular than the Doctor. With a thorough literary and scientific education, he took his medical diploma at more than one University. In 1832 he came to New York, as physician to Count Leon and his Colony of Socialists. The cholera was then raging in that city, and the time of his employment by the Count having expired he procured an entrance into the hospital to attend the cholera patients, and study the disease, where he soon had an opportunity in his own experience. In a few days he was prostrated by the plague, and recovered only by desperate remedies. He then returned to Germany; but a strong republican in principle, his mind was fixed on the Land of Freedom, and so he returned—wandered into the interior of Pennsylvania seeking a location, where he settled when his means for further migration were exhausted; where he has lived respected, nay more, beloved, and where his body has at last been laid down to rest.

"Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my early days;
None knew thee but to love thee,
None named thee but to praise."

An Anecdote of Mr. Lincoln.

In his speech at the Merchant's Banquet to the Odd Fellows, in Baltimore, Mr. John W. Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, related the following incident:

By his request I accompanied President Lincoln, immediately after the battle of Antietam, to the scene of that sanguinary conflict. After passing over the Baltimore and Ohio road from Washington to Harper's Ferry, I continued with him, by his desire, during the memorable period he spent with the officers and soldiers of the Federal army, and among the hospitals and the wounded upon that bloody field.

As in accord with the spirit of your fraternity, I will mention a scene which occurred in one of those hospitals which bedewed many eyes. The President examined, kindly and tenderly, into the condition and care of the Federal wounded. He also passed through the hospitals where were placed the Confederate wounded. Many of these hospitals, in view of the large number of the wounded, were improvised from the barns upon and in the vicinity of the field of battle. Passing through one of these, the middle space of an extensive Switzer barn, where a large number of Confederate wounded lay, the President stopped about the centre of the apartment, opposite a youth of striking appearance, probably of eighteen or twenty years of age. He lay looking very feeble and pallid. He held three straws in his hand, and was feebly moving them to keep the insects from his face. The President asked "if he had received all necessary attention?" He replied that "he had—that his right leg had been amputated." The President responded; "I trust you will get well." The youth—great tears rolling from his eyes, said: "No; I am sinking; I shall die." The President leaned tenderly over him, and said: "Will you shake hands with me?" I remarked: "This is President Lincoln." He attempted to raise his hand, and give it to the President. The President asked him: "Where are you from?" "From Georgia." Again the President expressed the hope, still holding his hand, that he would recover. "No," said the youth, "I shall never see my mother again—I shall die."

The President still held his hand, and fervently ejaculated, while he wept, and his tears mingled with those of the sufferer, "May God bless you, and restore you to your mother and your home." Amid all the sad scenes of that field of carnage, coming forth from that sanctified spot, I said, "Mr. President, such kindness will make missionaries of good will of the soldiers who return South to their homes." The President then expressed his wishes generally to those accompanying him, that all the wounded and all the sufferers should be kindly treated, and, in the course of conversation thereafter, expressed sanguine hopes that at an early day, instead of such scenes of suffering, scenes of concord and good feeling, and a restored Union, would be speedily realized.

DON'T READ THIS UNLESS IT INTERESTS YOU.—The Columbia Spy comments on newspaper borrowers: We have heard much complaint lately about this class of people—newspaper borrowers. Persons have told us they did not get to see their paper for a day or two after publication and sometimes not then. This is contemptible meanness, nay, thieving. They have no more right to read your paper, for which you subscribe and pay for the use of yourself and family, than they have to come into your house and eat your bread. We hope our patrons will be a little more prudent and not let the paper go out of their family to those who do not subscribe. Newspaper borrowers are always full of brazen-faced impudence, and should receive the scorn and contempt of all honest people. Let us have the names of all such individuals, who are known to borrow rather than spend the paltry sum of a few dollars for a local newspaper.

Electricity.
DR. BREWSTER HAS OPENED an office in Huntingdon, Pa., and has cured, and further pledges himself to cure a class of diseases acknowledged to be incurable by any known process of medication, diseases that never have, nor never can be controlled, only by his mode of applying the various modifications of Electricity.
The Doctor does not wish to convey the impression that he cures all diseases in all conditions; he does not wish to shock the sense of the public by asserting that he can cure pulmonary consumption after the lungs are half decayed, but he pledges himself to cure every case of pulmonary consumption in the early and middle stage, and every other disease where a sufficient amount of vitality remains for reaction.
Electricity is always safe in the hands of an experienced operator. The currents are perfectly under control, and can be regulated to suit the delicate nerves of a child without any unpleasant sensation.
☞ All those who have long suffered from painful and obstinate diseases!
☞ All those who have been given up by other Physicians!
☞ All those who have been dismissed as incurable from hospitals!

STAR MAGIC LINIMENT.
$1000 REWARD will be paid for any medicine that excels this for the following diseases:
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Spinal Affections, Contracted Joints, Cholic Pains, Pains in Side or Back, Toothache, Headache, Sprains, Sore Throat, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, and all Diseases of the Muscles, Skin and Glands.
This is an Internal and External Medicine, composed of Roots, Herbs and Barks such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on the earth to cure all complaints, if we only knew what they were. This has been a subject for constant study with the Medical Faculty for a great many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what portions to use.
This wonderful remedy needs no recommendation save the results which invariably follow its application.
Even this popular remedy is fast coming into use from the fact that it gives good satisfaction.
☞ PHYSICIANS are invited to test its efficacy in all cases of Rheumatism, Affections of the Spinal Column, and all Diseases of the Skin, Muscles and Glands. It has been used in thousands of instances under the personal supervision of the Inventors, and has never disappointed their expectations. All we ask for it is a trial—experimental proof—not the testimony of the men of straw, are the vouchers we desire to present to the public.
It would be well for many now lying in beds of torture, if these facts could reach their sick chambers. It is more important to them than to the inventors that this should be the case. "Truth is mighty and must prevail."
☞ Keep it in your family, for sickness comes when you least expect it.
PRICE—ONE DOLLAR.

The Fair.

The Fair was held for this county at the old grounds here on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last. The first day, as usual, nothing of interest occurred, and all that was done was in bringing in the articles for exhibition. The next day, however, the interest that our people have in such institutions was made manifest in the innumerable multitude that congregated on the fair grounds during the afternoon. The following day, Friday, also witnessed a large concourse of people not only on the fair grounds, but also in all the streets of town. There was the old man of eighty and the ardent youth of sixteen; there were the bright eyed, rosy cheeked damsels, and the affectionate mother bearing in her arms the laughing, round-faced babe, together with a host of the middle aged and youths of both sexes—all to be found with the "fair on the brain," (babies, too) and the beam of joyousness that repeatedly shone from their countenances gave sufficient assurance that they were highly delighted with the sights they saw.

We took a stroll through the grounds, (as who did not that was present) and went through the apartments to see "what was to be seen." We saw many things, in every class mentioned, that were truly remarkable, and if space would permit we would give a description of the most prominent articles on exhibition for the gratification of those who missed the pleasure of seeing for themselves. To tell of mammoth pumpkins, large apples, gigantic beats and tall corn; of fine embroidery, fancy painting, beautiful frames, and other delicate handi-work, and of the different species of stock and poultry there on exhibition would we know be interesting enough, but we leave it for friends to tell friends of what they saw.

It was a common remark by everybody that there was not enough things exhibited. To this all will agree; but do those who said this know that the fault is their own? Surely if they had brought even one article, that one would have been something more to look at and would have swelled the list. We would have liked to see more things at the fair than there were, and trust that at the next fair, everybody will not fail to bring something. We think if the fair was attractive enough to bring so many people together, the people should be kind enough to reward the fair by helping to fill it up.

On Friday afternoon the premiums were read. We expect to puplish them, where it will be seen who had the "biggest," and who had the "best." We think it was an amusing part of the fair to watch the physiognomies of the competitors during the reading of the list of names to whom the premiums were awarded. All those who brought contributions to the fair surely deserve credit, as well as the thanks of all spectators, and we hereby tender ours to the donors for the pleasure we had in viewing their donations.

The Fair was a success. The days of exhibition were favorable with regard to the weather; the crowd was immense; comparatively little drunkenness was to be seen; and although the number of contributions were few, yet what was there was well worth seeing. We expect to see many more articles next year,(if there is an exhibition as we suppose there will be) as it could not be foretold last year what the state of the times and country would admit, but we believe everything is favorable for a grand display the next time, all that is required being a due amount of energy and attention to their different pursuits by all classes of people. At the close of the exhibition, Graffus Miller, President of the Society, made a short address in which he thanked the people for their orderly attendance, and also the Altoona Cornet Band for the music they discoursed, necessary to the enlivenment of the occasion. The people then separated—the crowd of spectators to tell to comrades and friends the sights of the day, and the contributors, bearing away with them their articles, to tell of how the attention of the crowd was riveted on their productions, and some of the same with tones of gladness narrating the list of names who took the premium, themselves among the number. Farewell, Fair and fair scenes, and may we live to look upon your like again.

The Baby.

The Committee appointed to report in favor of the best looking baby on exhibition at the fair, after looking through the crowd on Friday, for two or three hours, unanimously agreed that Edgar Swivel, of Huntingdon, aged 13 months, was the premium baby, and the mother was awarded the Globe for one year, free of charge.

Soldiers' Monument.

The following is the Executive Committee of the Soldiers' Monument Association of Huntingdon county, Pa: R. Allison Miller, Chairman, Huntingdon; John Love, Barree; Hays Hamilton, Franklin; Theodore H. Cremer, Esq., Huntingdon; Wm. M. Philips, Alexandria; Samuel T. Brown, Esq Huntingdon; Rev. Theobald Fouse, Hopewell; George W. Garretson, Huntingdon; Simeon Wright, Esq., Union; David Black, Huntingdon; Thos. E. Orbison, Orbisonia; Brice Blair, Dublin; Hon. B. F. Patton, Warriorsmark.

The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' Monument Association of Huntingdon County will meet at my office in Huntingdon, Friday, Oct. 20, at 2 o'clock, P. M.

R. ALLISON MILLER,
Chairman.

The Quotas, Etc.

We publish in to-day's paper a full and accurate table showing the quotas, credits, surpluses and deficiencies of the several subdistricts of this county, on the various calls of the President for troops. We are under many obligations to James M. Kinkead, Esq., late chief Clerk of the Provost Marshal's office at Hollidaysburg, who has furnished us with the tables. He resigned his position as Chief Clerk of the Department on the 1st of September, and is now a resident of Hopewell, Bedford county.

☞ We understand that the "Family Record" which is becoming so popular everywhere, is published only in Philadelphia, and that any person publishing the work elsewhere, will do so illegally. The Publishers, Bartleson & Co., inform us through their agent, that they will prosecute such to the full extent of the law. The book is copyrighted. 2t.

Selling Liquors to Minors—In our strolls through town we very frequently notice youthful imbibers of tanglefoot behaving in a rather disorderly manner, and at the same time furnishing unmistakable proof that somebody has violated the laws prohibiting the sale of liquors to minors. There is a vast field here in which the temperance society can operate successfully.

Oil in Juniata.—A party engaged in boring in Juniata county, have "struck oil," at a depth of 318 feet in territory lying some twenty-four miles south-west of Mifflintown. There are indications that oil exists in large quantities thereabouts, and we anticipate that when pumps are put in operation there will be a good report received from the little Juniata.

☞ A New York paper gives as a reason for ladies crowding into a full car, that the "dear creatures love to be squeezed." We rather think that they do so, more to see how gallant a gentleman can be by offering his seat; and perhaps the majority of them believe "Men have no rights that women are bound to respect."

A New Opening.

Henry Strouse has just opened a new store in the room lately occupied by A. Willoughby, deceased, where the public can find Ready Made Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats, and Caps, &c. Give him a call and examine goods and prices. 2t.

Fire.

A fire broke out yesterday morning, in the roof of the wash house in the rear of Mr. R. M. Speer's dwelling, on Washington street, but was quenched before gaining much headway. Occasioned by stovepipe falling.

The Inner Life or the Joys of My Father's House;

By a wayfaring Man. This is a book in which the yearning heart of seeker and saint, will find a voice for its longings, in which the mourning and rejoicing will find words of comfort and exultation. It contains much that will encourage us on our journey through this vale of tears to our home in glory. It is well printed on tinted paper, by Sherman & Co., Philadelphia, and well bound. It has testimonials from the late Hon. T. Frelinghuysen, Bishop Simpson, and others of God's servants. The agent of this important book will be in town for a few days, and we commend him to the courtesy and patronage of our citizens, and trust he will meet with that success commensurate with the rare sure merits of the work. 2t.

Street Man-Traps.—It was Doctor Franklin who said he could always tell where good natured philanthropic people resided by walking through the streets and observing the houses which had ashes sprinkled over their pavements during sleety weather, when the footways were in a slippery condition. This method of discovering who is possessed the "milk of human kindness" can only be resorted to during the months when the rude blasts of winter are upon us, but a rule equally as good for obtaining like information is applicable to the summer months, and that is to notice what particular pavements are kept freed from water melon rinds, peach pearings, apple skins and similar life and limb endangerers. We never see a person stop in the street and with his foot or hand remove any fruit or vegetable matter from the pavement without mentally ejaculating, "That man is a real philanthropist," and at the same time we stigmatize the individual who dropped such matter there as a careless, reckless, inhuman personage. Accidents are of daily occurrence, and numerous personal injuries are inflicted on unsuspecting passers-by, who measure their lengths on the pavement through treading on fragments of fruits or vegetables. The practice of throwing refuse portions of fruit, &c., bought at the corner stands, on the public footway, is extremely reprehensible, and the authorities should inflict a heavy fine on any person caught so offending.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire! One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on South east corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.
may 31, 1865. FRANCIS B. WALLACE.

DR. STRICKLAND.—The valuable remedies offered by this regularly educated physician, who came here from Tennessee, highly recommended, will be found advertised in our columns. His office is No. 6 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, O.

We would advise any one suffering from a distressing cough or any affliction of the hroat or lungs, to try Dr. Strickland's Mellifluous Cough Balsam; it is for sale at the drug stores.

ASSOCIATE JUDGE.

To My Fellow Soldiers, and Fellow Citizens of Huntingdon County.

I announce myself to you as an Independent Union Candidate for the office of Associate Judge. And in doing so, you have the right to know who I am, and why I ask your votes.

I was born and reared in Penn township, and am now 32 years of age. Raised a farmer, I followed that pursuit until the commencement of the rebellion, when on the 16th of September, 1861, I enlisted as a private in the company of Capt. J. H. Wintrode in the 53d Regt. P. V., commanded by Col. Brooke. I was engaged in the seven days battles on the Peninsula, at Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and the intermediate fights, and on the 14th of October, 1863, a few miles from Bristow Station, Va., I had my right arm nearly shot off, compelling me to have it amputated close to the shoulder, a few hours afterwards. I was then taken to the hospital in Alexandria, where I lay until March 1864, when I was transferred to the Invalid Corps, in which I remained until the 21st of August, 1865, when I was discharged. Having been made Orderly Sergeant, and it being a part of my duty to keep the rolls of the company, I did my writing with my left hand. This is a brief account of my services during the war, and I take pride in referring to my Company and Regimental Officers for my record as a soldier; and as for character as a citizen, I refer to my neighbors at home, irrespective of party.

I am not and never was a politician. I love my country, and am willing to risk my life again in her defence. I claim no honor for what I have done—it was only my duty; but as I am poor, and, having lost my right arm in the service, and unable to earn a livelihood by honest toil, I appeal to the people, soldiers and citizens, to reward those who have been crippled for life in this great struggle to preserve the Government. The soldiers who fought by my side under our glorious flag, and are ready to do so again will not turn from the appeal of their former comrade in arms. If there is anything on earth that sanctifies friendship and proves our common brotherhood, it is the sufferings, the struggle, and the wounds of war. As the great fight is now over, the rebellion suppressed, and peace restored, we should not forget the brave men who won us the victory.

If elected I promise to discharge the duties of the trust with honesty and fidelity; and whether elected or defeated, I shall be none the less true to my country, and her triumphant flag. ANTHONY J. BEAVER.

ASSEMBLY.—

To the Voters of the Representative District Composed of the Counties of Huntingdon, Mifflin and Juniata.

At the earnest solicitations of many of my fellow citizens, I have been induced to offer myself as an independent candidate for the Legislature in this District, composed of the counties of Huntingdon, Mifflin and Juniata. If four years voluntary service in our army for the preservation of our glorious Union, constitute any claims to your suffrage, I ask it of you. For my acts as an officer and soldier, I refer you to the 9th Penna Cavalry during the war. J. M. PORTER.

McENTYRE'S

INDIAN VEGETABLE

WORM DESTROYER!

This infallible medicine is warranted to expel worms in all cases and may be given to children of all ages, as they are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

☞ Can be had at Lewis' Book store, Huntingdon, Pa.

PROF. J. H. M'ENTYRE'S GREAT REMEDY,

INDIAN COMPOUND

Internal and External Medicine,

WILL CURE:

☞ Diarrhœa, Bloody Flux in one day,
☞ Headache and Earache in three minutes,
☞ Toothache in one minute.
☞ Neuralgia in five minutes,
☞ Sprains in twenty minutes,
☞ Sore Throat in ten minutes,
☞ Cholic and Cramp in five minutes,
☞ Rheumatism in one day,
☞ Pain in the Back or Side in ten minutes,
☞ Bad Coughs or Colds in one day,
☞ Fever and Ague in one day,
☞ Cures Deafness, Asthma, Piles,
☞ Bronchitis Affections, Dyspepsia,
☞ Inflammation of the Kidneys, Erysipelas,
☞ Liver Complaint and Palpitation of the Heart,

Keep it in your Families—Sickness comes when least expected.

I propose to check, and effectually dissipate more ache and pain, and to accomplish more perfect equilibrium of all the circulating fluids in the human system, than can be effected by any other, or all other methods of medical aid in the same space of time.

THIS POPULAR REMEDY is fast coming into use, for the fact that I cure, free of charge, all these complaints whenever there is an opportunity to do so. As soon as it is applied it almost miraculously kills the pain. I do not ask you to buy before you are certain of its efficiency. If you have an ache or pain, it is warranted to do all it purports on the label; otherwise the money will be refunded.

I do not propose to cure every disease—only a class named by my directions. My liniment operates on chemical and electric principles, and is, therefore, appliable, to the cure or natural restorative of all organic derangement arising from an improper circulation of the nerve vital fluids.

Prof. J. H. McEntyre's INDIAN COMPOUND acts directly on the absorbents, reducing glandular and other swellings in incredible short time, without any possible danger from its use under any possible circumstances.

This is an internal and external medicine—composed of roots, herbs and barks, such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on earth to cure all complaints if we only know what they were.

This has been a great study with the Medical Faculty for many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what proportions to use. J. H. McENTYRE,

STAR MAGIC LINIMENT.

$1000 REWARD will be paid for any medicine that excels this for the following diseases:

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Spinal Affections, Contracted Joints, Cholic Pains, Pains in Side or Back, Toothache, Headache, Sprains, Sore Throat, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, and all Diseases of the Muscles, Skin and Glands.

This is an Internal and External Medicine, composed of Roots, Herbs, and Barks such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on the earth to cure all complaints, if we only knew what they were. This has been a subject for constant study with the Medical Faculty for a great many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what portions to use.

This wonderful remedy needs no recommendation save the results which invariably follow its application.

☞ This popular remedy is fast coming into use from the fact that it gives good satisfaction.

☞ PHYSICIANS are invited to test its efficacy in all cases of Rheumatism, Affections of the Spinal Column, and all Diseases of the Skin, Muscles and Glands. It has been used in thousands of instances under the personal supervision of the Inventors, and has never disappointed their expectations. All we ask for it is a trial—experimental proof—not the testimony of the men of straw, are the vouchers we desire to present to the public.

It would be well for many now lying in beds of torture, if these facts could reach their sick chambers. It is more important to them than to the inventors that this should be the case. "Truth is mighty and must prevail."

☞ Keep it in your family, for sickness comes when you least expect it.

NEW SKIRT FOR 1865-6.

The great invention of the age in

HOOP SKIRTS.

J. W. BRADLEY'S New Patent Duplex or double, ELLIPTIC SPRING SKIRT.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic pure refined steel springs, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible, elastic and durable spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the single springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape more than twice as long as any single spring skirt that ever has or can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas carriages, railroad cars, church pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small space as easily and conveniently as a silk or muslin dress.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the duplex elliptic steel spring skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

The hoops are covered with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the single yarn covering, which is used on all single steel hoop skirts. The three bottom rods on every skirt are also double steel, and twice or double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stone steps, &c., which they are constantly subject when in use.

All are made of the new and elegant corded tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable, and economical skirt ever made.

Wents' Bradley & Cary, proprietors of the invention, and sole manufacturers, 97 Chambers, and 79 and 81 Reade streets, New York.

For sale in all first-class stores in this city, and throughout the United States, Canada, Havana de Cuba, Mexico, South America, and the West Indies.
